August 3rd crop producers will have the opportunity to take part in a unique event, the Field Day Of Champions. The day will consist of two sections. In the morning in field presentations will be held on the Cox Grain Farms near Delta, MO. Participants will move indoors for lunch, followed by presentations that will cumulate in QA panel discussions that allow the audience to interact with champion producers. "This event will bring those seeking to learn from the best from as far away as Texas and the Dakota's. It is a rare gathering of award winning top farmers." says event coordinator Rod Livesay, Senior Director with the Conklin Company, who is sponsoring the event, along with Pioneer Hybrid Seeds.

Featured speakers for the day will include host Jerry Cox who holds the record for the most National titles in the NCGA yield contest history and is a past recipient of the Governor's Award in Missouri as well as Kip Cullers of Missouri – who is also a Governor's Award recipient and is a member of the 100 Bushel Club on Soybeans. Donny Carpenter of Texas – 300 Bushel Corn Club member who averages over 200 bpa on his 5000 acre farming operation, Steve Albracht of Texas-multi time, multi class National NCGA yield contest winner, David Hula of New York-reigning overall NCGA champion with a yield of 429.02 bpa and Doug Porter of Missouri – who implemented the ideas he learned from this approach 6 years ago and has beaten his county soybean average by 61 percent and his county corn average by 55 percent the last 3 years; while simultaneously increasing his bottom line and buying another 300 acres of farm ground. Rod Livesay of Iowa – will emcee the event. Livesay has presented over 500 state and national NCGA awards to farmers whom he works with since he began working with the yield contest about 15 years ago. He has team members all across the corn belt, and as far away as North Carolina and Wyoming.
