

Harvest Of Fall Crops In Full Swing

NASHVILLE, TENN.

With five days of mostly mild and dry weather conditions, farmers took advantage to continue harvest of their fall crops. Despite a cold front moving through the state last week bringing light showers, producers were wrapping up corn harvest and over half of the cotton acreage is now harvested, slightly ahead of the 5-year average. Soybean producers also made good harvest progress with almost half of the state's acreage now picked. The crop's condition continues to be rated fair-to-good. Additionally, a fifth of the winter wheat acreage had been seeded by week's end. Other activities last week included stripping tobacco, applying fertilizers and feeding hay. △
