

Ohio Valley Ag Acquires Owensboro, KY Based AgriMart

OWENSBORO, KY.

Ohio Valley Ag (OVA) announced on Monday that it is acquiring AgriMart, a regionally recognized leader in the agriculture application equipment, parts and services industry.

According to OVA General Manager, Richard Payne, "This will allow us to take our services in the Kentucky, Illinois and Indiana markets to a higher level and will allow the company to access new markets." Payne adds, "OVA is continually seeking to expand its business with growers and fertilizer dealers and this acquisition marks another milestone in the company's growth strategy."

OVA has established a solid reputation for providing excellent customer service through its focus on application products and associated services. With offices in Owensboro and Russellville, Kentucky, the company offers a full line of application equipment, including Apache sprayers, Chandler spreaders and Raven precision-ag products.
