

UK College Of Agriculture All-Commodity Field Day July 21

DR. ANDY BAILEY

PRINCETON, KY.

The University of Kentucky All-Commodity Field Day will be held at the UK Research & Education Center at 1205 Hopkinsville Street in Princeton, KY on Thursday, July 21, 2011. This is one of the largest field days in the region and is held every other year. This field day attracts approximately 2,000 participants and offers numerous activities for those interested in the latest in agricultural research as well as a wide range of family & consumer sciences activities and youth activities. Although the All-Commodity field day has agriculture as its primary focus, this event provides something for everyone.

This year's field day will include 9 agricultural production tours on tobacco, beef, forage, grain crops, pest management, fertility, vegetables, fruits, and ornamentals. Twenty Family and Consumer Science displays will include food tasting, financial management, and nutrition plus much more. Youth activities will include a petting zoo, animal demonstrations, and many other activities. The field day begins at 8:00 AM and runs until 3:00 PM. Lunch can be purchased on-site from the Kentucky Cattleman's Association and the Kentucky Pork Producers Association. For questions regarding the field day, please contact Andy Bailey at 270-365-7541 x 240 or by email at abailey@uky.edu. Δ

DR. ANDY BAILEY: Extension Tobacco Specialist, University of Kentucky