

UT Schedules Spring Heifer And Bull Sale At Plateau AgResearch Center

CROSSVILLE, TENN.

The University of Tennessee Plateau AgResearch and Education Center will hold its annual spring heifer and bull sale on Friday, March 25, starting at 10:00 a.m. CDT.

The sale will feature high-quality registered open Angus, Gelbvieh, and Balancer heifers as well as registered Angus bulls. All sale animals will come from the existing UT herd. Minimum bids per head will be required. Registration documentation and performance data are available for review. A list of the cattle to be sold is available online at <http://plateau.tennessee.edu>. For more information or to make arrangements to preview sale stock, contact the Center at 931-484-0034, or e-mail Glenda Wisdom at gwisdom@utk.edu.

Marcka Auction Services will oversee the sale, with Marcus Davis presiding as auctioneer. The sale will be conducted at the center's headquarters on U.S. Highway 70 North, approximately 8 miles west of Crossville.

The Plateau AgResearch and Education Center is one of 10 field laboratories operated across the state by the AgResearch unit of the UT Institute of Agriculture. At each facility UT researchers work to solve real-world problems faced by producers and industries so businesses can thrive and consumers can enjoy high standards of living.

More information about the Plateau Center, including a map and directions, is available online at <http://plateau.tennessee.edu/>. Δ
